Four young people examine their differences as they navigate their way through a maze of opinions, preconceptions and societal pressures. They try to find their place in the world and in themselves while dealing with the pressures of a society that judges them by the colour of their skin.

Playwright Dennis Foon has dedicated his talents to writing plays that encourage young people to challenge themselves and to ask questions about the world and the mixed messages they encounter.

Tamara Brown, marking her directorial debut, will bring this diverse cast and their powerful issues to life.

Skin will tour Montreal area schools and community centres throughout the month of February.
